Xiclet [chi'glat']

The catalan word for 'bubble-gum'.

The collection is a totally pink-girly-bubblegum universe - hence the name, Xiclet.

Collection synopsis

In Plato's Allegory of the Cave, we learn that what we see in this world, is not the final truth. We only see the shadows of the true form. We learn that we all live in a cave, and cannot understand what is beyond this cave - our world - because no one has ever seen it.

When one grows up, one experiences certain things, and all these things shape the way we see the world. Are you treated badly - that is how you will expect you will be treated for the rest of your being, and how you will interpret the shadows of the actions from others. We all live in our own little cave.

"REALITY IS CREATED BY THE MIND, WE CAN CHANGE OUR REALITY BY CHANGING OUR MIND."
- Plato

I changed my reality. I long lived in a cave where all shadows were seen negatively. I lived in melanchony and sorrow. But now i built myself a new cave. A cave of positivity and joy!

I welcome you to my cave called 'Xiclet', and i will let you see how i am creative and how i put my thoughts into clothing. It is fun, pink and pretty.

I now live in a gumbubble i hope won't burst.

Inspiration

I have always been inspired by the very ridget, oldfashioned clothing. All from medieval times up to Dior's New Look. Yet something about the unrestrained loo-sefitted, yet very feminine 60's caught my attention. So I chose to mix the two eras, by making a fun, feminine, romantic collection. I thrived to make a collection with all of the feelings from the medieval times, and translate it into casual fun garments.

Choice of fabrics

Synthetic fabrics were popular to use in the 60's, so to be true to my theme, I chose to mainly use that.

Colorchart

The colors are mostly light pink tones, with black as a contrast. The choice of these colors, are highly influenced by the fact that it is a spring/summer collection, and really highlights the girly romantic feeling.
